

The Art of Growing Food Simplify Your Kitchen Garden Design

Description: If you have been considering renovating your kitchen garden, or eager to start growing a food garden, that is both beautiful and productive, this class is for you. Join Ellen Ecker Ogden in her virtual class The Art of Growing Food to learn her six steps to successful kitchen garden design.

In this class you will learn how to organize, and simplify your efforts. Starting with an overview of how a kitchen garden can be more than simply a place to grow food, you will then start with a design on paper, learn about garden beds and paths, and select the right plants for the best flavor and productivity.

Format: This is a live Zoom class, with a private virtual platform for optimal sharing of ideas with other students. Each class is set up based on a step-by-step method to simplify technique and add beauty through plants, art and whimsy.

Cost: The full class, which begins mid - January and will run for 6 weeks is $249. Includes design kit and templates, sent when registered.

The Schedule: Six Saturdays: 10:30 – Noon

- January 22 Overview: The Art of Growing Food.
- January 29 Start with a Plan on Paper.
- February 5 Garden Paths, Beds & Benches.
- February 12 Selection, Starting and Saving Seeds.
- February 19 Plant Material and Placement in your garden.
- February 26 From Paper to Garden. Sharing our designs.

Free Introductory Class: Still deciding? Sign up for a free 45-minute introductory workshop to learn the core principles of kitchen garden design.

- December 11, 2021 @12 Noon
- January 08, 2022 @5 PM